Introduction

The designation of “Emeritus” is a honorary title that may be awarded to a President or Chair of the Board in recognition of exemplary service to the First Nations University of Canada. The “Emeritus” title may be bestowed to the individual during their last active service to the University.

Policy

The Board of Governors, in its sole discretion, may confer the title of “Emeritus” to distinguish former Presidents and Board Chairs who have completed one full term of office for exemplary service to the University.

The Emeritus title is honorific; it does not carry with it any entitlement to authority, rights, privileges or resources.

Presidents and Board Chairs Emeriti are welcome to continue their involvement with First Nations University of Canada in a manner to be agreed, but are not obligated to do so.
