Preamble and Principles

The First Nation University of Canada is unique. Evolving from and within a distinctive First Nation political, social and cultural environment, the University is the only post-secondary educational institution in Canada with a blended legal mandate derived from both Canadian and Indigenous legal systems. It is this unique character, which derives from the balancing of Western and Indigenous social, cultural and societal traditions, that lies at the heart of the academic mission of the University.

From a First Nation perspective the University is a creation of First Nation statute, duly passed and issued by the legislative assembly of the Federation of Sovereign Indigenous Nations. This legislation, entitled “An Act Respecting the First Nations University of Canada”, provides the governance and operational framework that guides the University. From the perspective of Canadian society, the University must also be guided by the provisions of the Saskatchewan provincial legislation entitled “The Non-Profit Corporations Act, 1995”. In addition, the University must also meet the requirements of many other acts and regulations, including but not limited to pension legislation, health and safety legislation, and tax law.

Additionally, as a Federated College of the University of Regina, the University must also meet the academic requirements inherent to the University of Regina and the University of Regina

Act. Details relating to academic matters are found in the Senate Bylaws, University of Regina, which can be accessed at: <http://www.uregina.ca/president/governance/senate/bylaws.html>.

2.3 Partnership Agreements

Under the terms of the Act, Part III, Article 8 (d), the Board of Governors has the authority “to enter into federation or partnership agreements, memoranda of understanding, or protocols with other educational entities as determined to be in the best interest of First Nations.” Partnerships between the University and other academic institutions are rightfully negotiated in the first instance by the President and Vice President Academic on behalf of the institution. The Board must be kept apprised of negotiations between the University and potential academic partners, with an increasing level of awareness as the likelihood of a signed agreement becomes imminent.

The following is a three-stage process for the approval of academic partnership agreements between the University and other academic institutions:

STAGE ONE: First Nations University of Canada is in discussions with a potential academic partner. An information item will be provided to the Board at its next full meeting.

STAGE TWO: An agreement has been drafted between the University and a potential academic partner. The draft agreement, with accompanying background, will be circulated to the Governance Committee for comment.

STAGE THREE: An agreement with a potential academic partner is imminently to be signed. The President will seek approval from the Board prior to signing.

The management, administration, and control of the property, revenues, business and affairs of the University are vested in the Board. The Board has the final locus of authority and accountability. Board members work with the Chair and President to ensure that the Board functions effectively and meets its obligations and responsibilities.

III. Governing Principles

- 3.1 The Board will govern with an emphasis on outward vision, commitment to obtaining ownership input, encouragement of diversity in viewpoints, strategic leadership, clear distinction of Board and employee roles, collective decisions, the future, and proactivity.

More specifically, the Board will:

- a) Cultivate a sense of group responsibility. The Board will be responsible for excellence in governing. The Board will be guided by its oversight role and policy governance, not merely a reactor to employee initiatives. The Board will use the expertise of individual members to enhance the ability of the Board as a body to make policy, rather than substitute their individual judgements for the group's values.
- b) Direct, control, and inspire the institution through the careful establishment of broad written policies reflecting the University's vision and mission as articulated in the strategic plan. The Board's major policy focus will be on the intended long-term impacts outside the operating organization, not on the administrative means of attaining those effects.
- c) The Board will hold individuals accountable to govern with excellence. Excellence in governance will include: preparation for meetings, policy-making principles, respect of roles, and ensuring the continuity of governance capability.
- d) Orient new members of the Board's governance process and periodically discuss process improvement.
- e) Not allow any member or committee of the Board to prevent the Board from fulfilling its commitments.

3.2 Advocacy

The First Nations University of Canada Board of Governors recognizes the importance of developing an effective communication plan and presenting a consistent public image with external stakeholders. In particular, the Board has identified the need for a formal process that will allow it to inform and educate governments, business and industry, and other stakeholders in response to meeting the objectives of the strategic plan.

In collaboration with the President, the Board of Governors will advocate on issues of concern and interest.

Advocacy initiatives shall be undertaken to:

- Advocate for consistent and relatively predictable funding and resources to enable the University to provide quality programs and services.
